

AEW Double or Nothing Preview and Usyk Boxing Update

Description

Bryan Alvarez will join me tonight to discuss the upcoming wrestling event, Double or Nothing, and share the latest news. We held a show last night featuring topics such as Saturday Night's Main Event, AAA wrestling, and the boxing match between Oleksandr Usyk and Rico Verhoeven.

Double or Nothing will take place at Louis Armstrong Stadium in New York, starting at 7 p.m. The event is expected to last over five hours. It has sold out, attracting 14,028 fans, which marks the second-highest gross in American pro wrestling history, generating around $1.5 million. This success has been driven by excitement surrounding the stipulation of a hair vs. title match, with ticket prices on the secondary market reaching $160.

The pre-show will include several matches, such as Megan Bayne and Lena Kross facing Zayda Steel and Viva Van. Other highlights will feature well-known wrestlers like Claudio Castagnoli and Mick Foley making an appearance.

In the main event, champions will defend or compete for titles including the AEW Women's and International titles. There will also be a unique "I quit" street fight for the tag team titles, adding further intrigue to the show.

In other news, the boxing match in Egypt saw mixed reactions, highlighting the declining interest in heavyweight boxing. Additionally, recent searches related to wrestling events showed lower interest compared to previous promotions.

As wrestling fans await tonight's show, excitement continues to build around Double or Nothing's matches and outcomes.
