Amy Adams and Father Save Stab Victim's Life

Description

Amy Adams helped save a man's life after he was stabbed in the neck. This happened in Santa Monica, California, while she was with her father, Richard Adams.

They saw people shouting that a man was dying. He was bleeding badly. Adams and her father quickly ran to help him. They used towels to stop the bleeding.

Adams said that in emergencies, she feels very focused. She told the man to stay calm and breathe deeply. She wanted him to lay down and not panic. Thanks to their help, the man survived.

A year later, Adams met the man again in a restaurant. He told her he knew about the story of the stabbing. He pointed to his neck, and she remembered him. They both felt emotional to see each other again.

This experience made Adams feel proud. She continues to share her story of helping others in need.
