

Cardi B Denies Child Support Request Rumor in Divorce Filing

Description

Cardi B has clarified misconceptions and rumors surrounding her divorce from Offset. Addressing viral claims about child support and reasons for their split, she emphasized that the reports were false and untrustworthy. Despite the breakup, she continues to make headlines, especially with their third child on the way.

Recently, Cardi responded on Instagram to reports by The Jasmine Brand, debunking claims that she left Offset due to lack of support and a request for child support. She clarified that her only request was for him to cover existing and future child-related expenses.

The false reports were allegedly made by individuals who claimed to be her friends, suggesting that Offset's lack of support led to irreconcilable differences in their marriage. Fans supported Cardi's response, advising her to prioritize her well-being amidst the drama.

In her divorce filing, Cardi requested financial contributions from Offset for the welfare of their children. She sought primary custody and equal division of assets acquired during their marriage. The split was attributed to irreconcilable differences, but her pregnancy with their third child may have influenced her decision.

Announcing her pregnancy on Instagram, Cardi expressed gratitude for the new chapter in her life. She credited her children for inspiring her through challenges and emphasized that she could have love, life, and passion without compromise. As Cardi navigates this new chapter, the question remains whether she will reconsider her relationship with Offset.
