

Celine Dion makes live comeback at Paris Olympics opening ceremony

Description

Celine Dion, the world-famous singer, has made a comeback. She sang at the Paris Olympics opening ceremony, her first performance in four years. After being ill with a health condition called Stiff Person Syndrome (SPS), she has worked hard in therapy to rebuild her voice. SPS makes muscles spasm and can affect a person's voice.

Dion sang alone at the ceremony, next to the Eiffel Tower. Her powerful performance was the highlight of the event. Her song choice was Edith Piaf's L'Hymne à l'Amour. The 56-year-old singer's act has made people happy and hopeful that her therapy is working well.

Fans from all around the world were excited to see Dion perform again. Prime Minister of Canada, Justin Trudeau, praised her talent and her bravery. He said, "Celine, it's great to see you singing again".+

Dion, known for songs like My Heart Will Go On and It's All Coming Back to Me Now, is adored by many. She also holds the record for the most successful residency of all time in Las Vegas. After her performance at the Paris Olympics, Dion hinted at a new Las Vegas show. Her fans can't wait to see her perform again.
