

Joe Barrick, Creed Fisher, Andrew Davis, and Forrest Latta

Creed Fisher is an outlaw singer-songwriter. He has joined Average Joes Entertainment.

His first song with the new label is called "Keep Those Wheels Rollin.'" This song is about life on the road. It talks about long drives and the love for home.

Creed says, "This song is for truckers and anyone who spends time on the highway. They help make America great."

Creed is a great storyteller. His music has almost 100 million streams on Spotify. He grew up in West Texas and played professional football before becoming a musician.

Andrew Davis from Average Joes says, "Creed's music is real country music. It speaks to working-class people."

Forrest Latta, the president of Average Joes, agrees. He is excited for fans to hear Creed's music.

Lorie Hollabaugh writes for MusicRow magazine. She has 20 years of experience. She loves to write about music. You can email her at lhollabaugh@musicrow.com.
