

Imperium Technology Group (HKG:776) shareholders see strong week amid three-year loss

Description

Imperium Technology Group Limited (HKG:776) saw its share price go up by 26% in a week, which is good news. However, over the past three years, the shares have dropped by a huge 82%. This could worry long-term investors. The key question now is whether the company is improving. It's essential to remember that health and happiness are more important than money.

Even though the stock rose by 26% in the last week, long-term investors are still facing losses. Let's look at the company's basics to understand more.

Imperium Technology Group didn't make a profit in the past year. Since it is losing money, we need to focus on its revenue growth. Unfortunately, the company's revenue has decreased by 25% each year for the past three years. This poor performance has caused the share price to fall by 22% annually. Investing in such a company can be risky.

Long-term investors who have held the stock for five years have made a small profit of 5% each year. If the company shows signs of long-term growth, the current low share price could be a good opportunity.
