

Jessie Buckley and Michael B. Jordan Triumph at Oscars

Description

The 2026 Oscars witnessed emotional acceptance speeches from winners in various categories. This event is significant as it highlights the achievements and stories of actors in the film industry.

Amy Madigan, who won Best Supporting Actress, opened the night with a humorous comment about preparing her speech. She said, "I was in the shower last night trying to think of something to say." Madigan expressed her surprise at winning and thanked her fellow nominees and her husband, actor Ed Harris, before leaving the stage in tears.

Maggie Kang, who received an Oscar for "KPop Demon Hunters," apologised to "people that look like me," saying it took a long time to see representation in films. She celebrated the moment, saying it was for Korea and future generations.

Jessie Buckley dedicated her award for Best Actress to "the beautiful chaos of a mother's heart." She expressed admiration for her fellow nominees, stating she felt inspired by them and wanted to work with each one.

Michael B Jordan thanked those who paved the way for him in the industry. He mentioned iconic actors like Sydney Poitier and Denzel Washington, expressing gratitude for their influence on his career.

Paul Thomas Anderson, winning for Best Film, shared his thoughts about previous nominees from 1975, stating there is no single best film, only a shared joy in being part of cinema.
