

Legendary TV Director of Oscars and Emmys Passes at 85

Description

Don Mischer, a distinguished figure in live event direction over the past sixty years, passed away peacefully in his sleep on the night of April 11 in Los Angeles. The esteemed 15-time Emmy Award winner was 85 years old.

Mischer's unwavering dedication to his craft extended to the end of his life, as he succumbed just as he was contemplating a permanent retirement.

"I want you to know that, after more than six decades in television, I will be doing my last show tomorrow on Saturday, April 5th here in Los Angeles," he informed Deadline just last week. "I commenced my journey at the PBS station in Austin on the University of Texas campus in 1963, and I celebrated my 85th birthday the previous week. It feels as though time has simply flown by."

Mischer's final production was the 2025 Breakthrough Prize Ceremony, hosted by James Corden, which unfolded at Barker Hangar in Santa Monica, featuring a constellation of tech luminaries and A-list entertainers, including a performance by Katy Perry. This ceremony, often dubbed the "Oscars of Science," is currently available for streaming on YouTube; you can watch it here.

Mischer's television career is unparalleled, encompassing the direction and production of numerous landmark events, including two Academy Awards, 15 Emmy ceremonies, and multiple Kennedy Center Honors, alongside countless other specials. With over 100 directing credits to his name, his legacy is firmly established.

His illustrious portfolio includes the Opening Ceremonies of the 1996 Summer Olympics and the 2002 Winter Olympics, renowned Super Bowl Halftime Shows featuring luminaries such as Michael Jackson, Prince, and Bruce Springsteen; the Obama Inaugural Concert at the Lincoln Memorial, which attracted 750,000 spectators, as well as an array of other historic broadcasts.

In 2023, Mischer released his autobiography, 10 Seconds To Air: My Life In The Director's Chair, where he unveiled behind-the-scenes insights into iconic television moments he orchestrated, including Michael Jackson's legendary Billie Jean performance and Prince's unforgettable halftime show amid torrential rain. Additionally, he recounted experiences working alongside icons such as Muhammad Ali and Frank Sinatra.

Reflecting on his passion for live television during an interview with Deadline's Pete Hammond, Mischer, a proud alumnus of the University of Texas at Austin, described his childhood fascination that ignited his career.

"I was merely nine years old when television arrived in my hometown of San Antonio, Texas, and I vividly recall attending the inaugural TV show," he reminisced. "The gymnasium was transformed into a vibrant spectacle, filled with cameras, lights, and live performances from mariachi bands and country ensembles. Monitors surrounded the basketball court, allowing us to experience the event both live and through the screen, thus igniting my infatuation with television."

Mischer thrived on the unpredictable and high-stakes nature inherent in live television.

“There exists no experience quite like counting down the final seconds to the live broadcast of the Olympic Opening Ceremonies, with the knowledge that 80% of the globe will be watching and understanding that this is a single opportunity to succeed,” he articulated. “There are no retakes, no edits—only the raw immediacy of the moment, showcased before a vast audience of dignitaries and global viewers, vanishing in an instant. This encapsulates the vibrancy and challenge of live television.”

Over his monumental career, Mischer garnered 15 Emmy Awards, a record 10 Directors Guild of America Awards, a Peabody Award, two NAACP Image Awards, the prestigious Norman Lear Achievement Award from the Producers Guild of America in 2012, and the DGA Lifetime Achievement Award for Television in 2019, among numerous other accolades. In 2014, he was honored with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

“It has been a remarkable personal odyssey for me since the early days of television in 1949—between Super Bowl halftime shows featuring musical legends and Olympic Ceremonies, culminating in historic events such as Carnegie Hall’s centennial and Obama’s grand Inaugural Concert,” Mischer revealed to Deadline just days prior to his passing. “Yet now, it seems Mother Nature is urging me to slow down!”

Unfortunately, he did not have the chance to do so, passing away just days later.

Mischer is survived by his wife, Suzan, his four children, Heather, Jennifer, Charlie, and Lily, along with two grandchildren, Everly and Tallulah.
