

Marathon Unveils New PvE Mode and Future Roadmap

Description

Marathon is a video game by Bungie. It wants to attract more players by adding new features. One of these features is a PVE-only mode. This mode will let players work together instead of competing against each other. Bungie aims to make the game more friendly and fun for everyone.

In a recent blog post, Bungie shared plans for Marathon's future. The new PVE mode will be available in Season 2. Players will fight against bots in a quieter setting. There will also be a mode that includes some PVP (player versus player) but details are still unclear.

Bungie wants to keep PVP in the game. They are also creating a mode just for PVP. This will make sure there is action and excitement, but also time to relax. Bungie wants players to enjoy the game at their own speed.

Bungie will improve how new players start the game. They also want to make the game better for long-time players. They plan to update Marathon over the next few seasons.

Despite some players enjoying the game, it has not performed well. Bungie hopes these changes will attract new players. They want to keep supporting Marathon for several years.
