

Meeting of World's Tallest and Shortest Women Over Tea

Description

The world's tallest woman and the world's shortest woman recently had a unique meeting in London to celebrate Guinness World Records Day. Rumeysa Gelgi, standing at 215.16 centimeters (7 feet 0.7 inches) tall, and Jyoti Amge, measuring just 62.8 centimeters (2 feet 0.7 inches), enjoyed afternoon tea at the Savoy Hotel. Despite their significant height difference of 152.36 centimeters (5 feet), the two women bonded over their shared interests in makeup, self-care, jewelry, and nail art.

Gelgi, a web designer from Turkey, holds the record for being the tallest woman alive in 2021 due to a rare condition called Weaver syndrome. On the other hand, Amge, an actress and media personality from India, has achondroplasia, a bone growth disorder affecting her arms and legs. Despite her small stature, Amge has made a big impact on social media and even appeared on the TV series "American Horror Story: Freak Show." Both women have been recognized as GWR ICONS in the upcoming 2025 edition of the Guinness World Records book.

Meeting in London, Gelgi and Amge shared their unique perspectives on life, emphasizing the importance of celebrating differences. This meeting highlighted the beauty of diversity and the extraordinary achievements of individuals from all walks of life.
