Rolling Stones deliver an electrifying performance at MetLife Stadium ahead of Memorial Day weekend

Description

The Rolling Stones recently threw an epic Memorial Day weekend party in New Jersey at MetLife Stadium. The legendary band, with members Mick Jagger and Keith Richards both in their 80s, showcased their timeless talent with a mix of classic hits and new material from their album "Hackney Diamonds."

One highlight of the show was Chanelle Haynes, making her Rolling Stones live debut and delivering a stellar performance on the female lead for "Gimme Shelter." The band's energy only grew as the night went on, with Jagger even sprinting from the stage catwalk to the drum kit during "Honky Tonk Women" without skipping a beat.

The concert featured fan favorites like "Paint it Black" and "Gimme Shelter," as well as surprises like Richards performing two songs instead of his usual one. The Stones' tour, sponsored by AARP, continues to captivate audiences with their music and showmanship, proving that age is just a number in rock 'n' roll. Don't miss their next performance at MetLife Stadium!
