

'Taylor Frankie Paul's Bachelorette Season Cancelled Over Domestic Violence Claims'

Description

The Bachelorette is on hold in the United States. This is because of problems between Taylor Frankie Paul and Dakota Mortensen. The show was meant to start on Sunday, March 22, but it has been removed from the schedule. ABC has not said if it will air later.

A Disney Entertainment spokesperson said they decided not to continue with the new season. They want to support the family. This news follows a video release showing Paul and Mortensen fighting. This fight also led to Paul's arrest last year.

Paul expressed gratitude for ABC's support. She wants to keep her family safe. Paul has faced mental and physical abuse and is now ready to share her story.

There is a current investigation about domestic violence involving Paul and Mortensen. They have a two-year-old son named Ever. Both parents made allegations against each other. The police have not shared more details.

Mortensen has requested temporary custody of Ever. He wants Paul to avoid alcohol and drugs when with their son. He aims to protect his child and hopes to work together with Paul.
