
Trump supporters create an executive order to establish advanced artificial intelligence initiatives in defense, known as the 'Manhattan Projects'.

Description

Former president Donald Trump's allies are working on a new AI executive order aimed at advancing military technology and reviewing regulations. This move suggests that a potential second Trump administration would support AI policies beneficial to Silicon Valley. The framework also proposes the establishment of "industry-led" agencies to evaluate AI models and safeguard systems from foreign threats. The document, titled "Make America First in AI," presents a different approach from the Biden administration. The Republican Party has included repealing the Biden AI executive order in its platform, arguing that it hampers innovation. The Greater military investment in AI is expected to benefit tech companies that work with the Pentagon. Overall, the document provides insights into the potential AI policies Republicans may pursue to replace the Biden executive order.
